structure

Collagen types in collaloc:

Collagen type I is the most prevalent collagen and can be found e.g. in the skin, in tendons and bones. It represents 90 % of the collagens of human and generally animal bodies. It stimulates production of own collagen and acts simultaneously as a building element.

Collagen type II is mostly located in cartilage.

Collagen type III can be found in the skin, muscles and bones together with type I. It differs from type I due to its high amount of proteoglykanes and glycoproteins.
